CURSED AT VERDICT

MARK M. ADKINS FOUND GUILTY OF BURNING GARAGE

FOUR YEARS SENTENCE

Prisoner Was Led From Court Room Loudly Abusing Court and Jury Case Attracted Wide Attention.

Maark M. Adkins, convicted by a jury in circuit court this morning of setting fire to and burning the Gregory garage at Clearmont April 19, 1918, flew into a passion when the verdict was announced, and his face livid with rage, loudly cursed the court aand jury as he was led from the court room by Sheriff John E. Dowden. It was a scene never before witnessed in the court room. Adkins' punishment was fixed at four years in the penitentiary.

The case having been on trial since Monday was given to the jury at 10:15 o'clock last night following the arguments of the attorneys.

It is understood that the first ballot taken last night was ten for conviction and two for acquittal. The second ballot was unanimous for conviction, it is understood. The jury retired last night about midnight. They went in session at seven o'clock this morning to assess the punishment. Several ballots were taken and it stood all the way from three to fifteen years sentence. Finally it was compromised to four years in the penitentiary. The jury came in about 9:15 this morning.

When the jury returned with their verdict but few persons other than those directly interested in the case were in the court room. Adkins sat with his wife, watching keenly the jurors as they filed into their seats, and with an expression of confidence on his face. When the verdict was read he appeared not to realize fully what had happened until the sheriff tapped him on the shoulder and told him he muts go to jail. The prisoner shuffled into his overcoat and leaving the bar began cursing as he followed the sheriff from the room. 'Well, this g—— d—— court is done, g—— d—— 'em, I'll ——" but the rest was lost in the noise of shuffling feet in the hallway.

"What did he say, was he cursing?" Judge Woods asked as if afraid he might have heard aright. When told that Adkins had cursesd the court and was in contempt Judge Woods started as if he would recall him, but changed his mind. "He has already been convicted," he said, "I guess that's enuf."

Seldom has other than a murder case attracted such wide attention, crowds having daily filled the court room to hear the testimony. Over eighty witnesses were summoned, most of them appearing on the stand on one side or the other.

Adkins was charged with burning the Gregory garage at Clearmont, owned by James Hornbuckle and Elmer Pence, the motive being shown to be in revenge for the action of Jas. Hornbuckle in replevin of a car in Adkins possession. With suspicion pointing to Adkins as the perpetrator of the crime officers found the electric wires leading to Clearmont grounded shutting off all lights in the town and later trailed a car said to have been driven by Adkins from near the scene of the fire to his home. The officers found the engine of the car still warm from the drive, Adkins, explaining it by saying he had taken his family to a picture show at Elmo the night before.

Circumstantial evidence in the case was that Clyde Horn, a nephew, was an accomplice and was with Adkins at the time. Horn skipped out and efforts to locate him have proved fruitless.

BACK FROM EASTERN MARKET

H. L. Haines Sees East Pay Homage to Returning Yanks—Talks of Merchandise Prices.

Harvey L. Haines returned at noon today from a three weeks' buying trip at the New York City dry goods markets, during which time he purchased goods for the Haines store.

Mr. Haines says the excitement and stir in the East over the Yankee soldiers this year and last is just the difference between going and coming. He saw the Baltic carrying about 5,000 returned American soldiers enter the harbor at New York. The piers were packed with relatives and friends of the men and there was shouting and singing and tears of joy. Not only the piers, but a distance of three and four blocks back, the streets were massed with people to greet the men. Mr. Haines passed through the big million dollar welcome arch which the city of New York is building at 23rd street and Fifth Avenue. The arch is nearly completed and on returning every soldier must pass under this triumphal span which is a marvel of arhitectural skill.

"Merchandise is higher than a fussing cat's back," was Mr. Haines' comment on the dry goods situation, "but I bought plenty for I figured I could not sell the goods with the goods in New York. While pork, farm products and food stuffs remain as high as they are, dry goods will not and cannot come down. Some lines of domestic cottons are lower, but the colored, especially the finely colored stuff is higher than last season.

"The silks are the most beautiful I have ever seen, but there has been more trouble with the silk market than any other and the prices are simply up-with-the-angels in height. Mills in the East that have been shut down for weeks on account of strikes are just now being opened and the condition of the Japan market has been one of the factors in boosting the prices. The wool situation has caused a greater popularity for silks than we have had for years and the new weaves are what the women call "perfect dreams." They are mandarin, dew-kist, mirrette and pebble silk, not old weaves with new names, but new ones that show what American manufacturers and dye makers can do."

GIBB BOUND OVER

TESTIMONY WAS FALSE

In Statement to Prosecutor McCaffrey This Morning He Declares Evidence Was Not True.

Charles Gibb, a witness in the case of the State against Mark M. Adkins, and arrested late yesterday afternoon on information filed by Prosecuting Attorney McCaffrey on a charge of perjury, was given a preliminary hearing this morning before Justice Johnson and was bound over to the April term of circuit court. Bail was fixed at $750.

Gibb had been called to testify to certain remarks which he had said he heard Adkins utter the day after the burning of the Clearmont garage and also as to the location of the automobile casings on the Adkins automobile. He told in court that the diamond tread non-skid casing was on the right hind wheel of the automobile and that a few days before the fire he had changed this particular tire from the front wheel to the right rear wheel. In a statement to Prosecuting Attorney McCaffrey this morning, he said this part of his testimony was not true.

His statement to Prosecuting Attorney McCaffrey was as follows:

In the office of the Prosecuting Attorney of Nodaway County, Missouri and in the presence of my attorney, Mr. Ellis G. Cook and in the presence of Mr. A. B. Dowden, a deputy sheriff of Nodaway County and also in the presence of Thomas A. Gibbs and I. A. Lloyd, both of Northboro, Iowa, I voluntarily make answers to the following questions put to me by Charles F. McCaffrey, Prosecuting Attorney of Nodaway County, Missouri.

Q. Your name is Charley Gibb?
A. Yes sir.
Q. How old are you Mr. Gibb?
A. I will be 23 the 10th of March.
Q. You are a married man?
A. I am.
Q. Where do you live now?
A. Shenandoah, Iowa.
Q. How long have you known Mark M. Adkins?
A. Well, it hasn't been a year.
Q. You remember coming to Maryville as a witness in the trial of the case of the State of Missouri vs. Mark M. Adkins, wherein he was charged with the burning of the garage at Clearmont, Missouri, on the night or morning rather, of April 19, 1918?
A. Yes sir, I remember coming down here for that.
Q. When, after arriving in Maryville did you see either Mark M. Adkins or any of his brothers or any of the lawyers who were defending him?
A. Well, it was before noon when I saw the Adkins brothers.
Q. Which one of the Adkins brothers did you see?
A. I saw Mark and his brother Ed, both.
Q. When did you see any of the lawyers who were defending him and which ones?
A. Some time in the afternoon of the same day, I saw the one who asked me the questions on the stand and the gray haired one. I can't call their names.
Q. Where did you see them?
A. In their office.
Q. Which office?
A. The one on the corner over yonder, southwest of the court house.
Q. Did they, at any time, discuss with you anything relatives to the Adkins trial?
A. Yes sir.
Q. Now, please tell us whether or not you had written down the location of the automobile casings on the Adkins automobile?
A. I had.
Q. What did you do with that paper?
A. I had it when I came to Maryville and I gave it to one of the lawyers, the one that asked me the questions in the trial.
Q. What did those men, those lawyers, say to you about that?
A. Well, they asked me about those casings that was on the car. They told me to forget about that paper.
Q. On that paper you had written down the location on the automobile of the various casings?
A. Well, I had took the names of them, yes.
Q. You told us in the trial of the cause, that the diamond tread non-skid casing was on the right hind wheel of

ASK $7,000 OF NODAWAY

Drive Will Start Tomorrow—Chairman Wells Names Solicitors Who Will Canvass Maryville.

The county organization in charge of the drive for Armenian and Syrian relief will begin the campaign tomorrow to raise the county's quota of $7,000. One or two townships have already reported their quota raised and reports from others yesterday said there would be no difficulty in raising the sum assigned. The organization in all townships has been completed and a house to house canvass has been planned to begin the first of next week.

Solicitors for Maryville are announced as follows: Mrs. E. F. Dale, Mrs. E. W. Heideman, Mrs. Marie Curnutt, Mrs. R. L. McDougal, George Moore, A. S. Robey, Prof. C. C. Leeson, R. M. Tulloch, Hal T. Hooker, Arch K. Frank, G. H. Westfall, H. E. Wright, Prof. Bert Cooper.

As showing the dire distress of the ravxaged countries, Abram L. Elkus, former United States ambassador to Turkey said in a recent address:

"I thought I knew what hunger and poverty were, but I had no real conception of their meaning until I saw them in the near east," said Mr. Elkus. "It was no unusual thing in the cities to find, in the morning, bodies of women and children who had died of starvation and suffering during the night. Thousands would stand in line all day and all night to get a little soup and a small piece of bread. The 400,000 orphans of Armenia are crowding every available building. These little ones cry aloud to America for help.

"The roads of Asia Minor are white with skeletons of Armenians. A friend of mine counted in one field 400 bodies of those who had been butchered by Turks because they were too exhausted to march. The survivors of the massacres ask America merely for a chance to live and to become self-supporting."

FOR WHOLE COUNTY

WAR MEMORIAL MUST BE A NODAWAY COUNTY INSTITUTION

THE PROJECT STARTED

Central Committee Called by Mayor Garrett Formed Temporary Organization Last Night.

That the proposed war memorial in honor and memory of our soldiers and sailors will be a Nodaway county institution for all the people of the county was made evident at the meeting last night of representatives of various civic, religious and educational organizations called by Mayor W. O. Garrett to discuss the project.

The following persons attended the meeting: J. R. Robinson, Board of Education; M. J. Alderman, Nodaway Red Cross chapter; E. C. Curfman, Home Guards; Prof. C. A. Hawkins, Normal School; M. A. Hahn, City Council; C. Edwin Wells, Nodaway County Sunday School Association; Dr. S. A. Coile, Ministerial Alliance; Bernard Dougan, Knights of Columbus; Nathaniel Sisson, Commercial Club; Mrs. M. E. Farrar, Women's Relief corps; Mrs. S.A. Coile, D. A. R.; Sedgwick Post, G. A. R., Capt. Chas. Hyslop; H. D. Snyder, Spanish American War Veterans.

Mayor Garrett informed the meeting that he had thought it advisable to make some kind of a start towards securing a memorial and that further action would be at the pleasure of those present. He said his interest in the matter was in getting a starting point and asked that those present take charge of the meeting. Mayor Garrett was elected to become a member of the general committee and a temporary organization was formed with W. O. Garrett, Chairman; Dr. S. A. Coile, vice-chairman; G. A. Pickens, secretary and Jas. B. Robinson, treasurer.

It was the concensus of opinion that as the proposed memorial was to be erected for the benefit of Nodaway county that farther action be postponed until representatives from every township in the county could meet the central committee to advise and suggest such plans, and ways and means, as would assure the memorial being what the people of the county would like to have.

In line with this idea Chairman Garrett was instructed to communicate with the mayor or chief officers of every town in the county asking that each township send a delegation of three persons to meet with the original committee. The meeting was called to be held Saturday, March 1, at 1:30 o'clock at the court house when a full discussion of the proposed memorial will be had and a permanent county organization formed to handle the matter.

Chairman Garrett was authorized to invite representatives from such other social, fraternal and other societies as might desire to be represented on the committee, among them the W. C. T. U. and the Twentieth Century Club.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one, those present taking part in the discussions and each showing a deep interest in getting the matter under way with the least delay possible.

HIS PRESTIGE HAS GROWN

Splendid Achievements Before Peace Council Commented on—Will Make Address on Reaching United States.

Brest, Feb. 15.—President Wilson began his return journey to America at 11:15 this morning. President Wilson sailed for the United States today clothed with even greater prestige than when he arrived in Europe. This is due solely to his magnificent achievement of getting the plan for the league of nations through the committee and before the peace conference. Before time for him to leave the French, who were somewhat touchy at time, notably, over the President's opposition to internation land, sea and air forces, now acclaim his work in the league committee as the strongest peace guarantee the world ever knew.

NEWS FROM
NODAWAY COUNTY TOWNS

Mrs. Will Wallace is now manager of the Mutual Telephone Co., at Hopkins, coming the first of the month from Parnell, where she had been manager of the Telephone Company there. The patrons are already bragging on the good service they are now receiving.

Through the agency of Frank Melick, Lawrence Wiley has bought the John Koomer 160 acre farm 2 miles southwest of Hopkins, the consideration being $26,000. Mr. King, who now resides on the farm, will remain on it for another year.

Rev. D. W. Griffith of Hopkins has received a letter from his son, Walter, who is at Arenburg, Germany, which shows that he and his brother, Ben, who is at Coblenz, have found each other. His letter written on Jan. 9, is as follows:

Dear Folks: I was over in Coblenz about 10 kilos from here to see Ben and we had a couple of hours' talk. He promised faithfully to come out here Sunday and by the time you receive this letter who should have seen each other a number of times.

He is healthy and working like a bever in a laboratory. I guess it seems strange, running across each other during the war.

S. B. Neff sold his farm east of Elmo to T. R. Livengood, and gives possession March 1. The land adjoins Mr. Livengood's farm and will make a valuable addition to his place.

We did not learn what Mr. Neff will do but suppose he may move to his other farm about a mile to the northeast.

Len Andrew, of Hopkins, who recently gave a big closing out sale after leasing his farm for a term of years to Os McMillen, soon found there is no country quite as good as Missouri, as last week he returned from Denver, where he had been staying since leaving here, and bought the Geo. Cassel eighty that adjoins his farm, and will move onto same, paying $175 an acre for it. Len and his wife both have a lot of friends and all are mighty glad they have decided to again live among us.

The Barnard Mercantile Co. traded their 157 acres near Cawood to S. E. Richards last week, taking in on the deal the 30 acre farm, known as the Eliza Miller farm and a 40 acre farm formerly owned by W. B. Torrance.

The Barnard State Bank has plans to enlarge their banking house in the near future, having secured the Thos McMillen building for that purpose. They will build a large fireproof vault and make other additions.

Monday evening there was held at Harmony church a meeting to close up the financial affairs of the new High School building. A balance of $700 was raised which made a total of cash raised of $2,350 and makes it possible to pay off all the indebtedness of the school. Besides the expenditure of that amount of money there has been much work donated by the patrons and friends of the school. Some one gives it out that Rev. Green worked 100 days and others contributed in proportion, so that it is conservatively estimated that the school stands them about $4,000.

Pat Beatty of Parnell is just completing a nice bungalow on his farm west of town. Pat says he got tired of living in an old house and thought he would be a little more modern. The most of the carpenter work was done by his uncle, A. J. Beatty.

J. D. Rice of Barnard closed a deal Friday with J. E. Goforth whereby he traded his 160 acre farm lying west of town to J. E. Goforth at $18,000, taking in 120 acres of land in North Dakota at $8,000. Possession will be given March 1, and Rice will move with his family to Dakota.

Rev. R. W. Moore, recently called pastor of the Christian church of Barnard arrived there last week to make his future home. He is dividing his time between the Christian churches at Barnard and Bolckow. Mr. Moore seems to be a mighty pleasant man and will find a ready welcome there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Klaas of Conception went to Camp Dodge, Iowa, Saturday to visit their son, Henry, who is in the hospital at that place. He was wounded while in action in France, and has but recently returned to the U. S.

Ross Wallace received notice the latter part of last week that he had been appointed carrier on rural route No. 2 at Clearmont, to take the place of Charles Thorp, who died a short time ago. He commenced his work Monday morning. This is not new work to Ross, as he has acted as substitute carrier and was well posted on the work.

Orlo Lincoln of Pickering has accepted a position in the store of Candle, Lincoln & Co., of Burlington Junction and began work there this week. Henry L. Rutherford, who has been working at this store the past year, will be back with Corken & Yaple the first of the month.

Mrs. Maria Bowman sold her farm of 180 acres, located west of Burlington Junction yesterday, the purchaser being her grandson, Charles Suttle of near Pickering. The consideration was $110 an acre. Charles gets possession the first of March but C. E. Jones who has been farming the place, will continue there another year.

Adrian Brown, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, living four miles southeast of Burlington Junction, arrived home Tuesday morning with his honorable discharge from military service. Adrian was among the first Burlington Junction boys to be taken, leaving here in September, 1917, for Camp Funston. He trained there the following winter and was sent overseas in the spring, and was soon on the scene of action. Adrian was compelled to go to the hospital several times on account of a catarrhal affection in the head, the exposure in active service aggravating the condition. He is the third Burlington Junction soldier to return home who has seen overseas duty.

Dr. C. E. Cossins of Burlington Junction has bought the Dragoo residence property, which he has rented for several years. This is a very desirable property, well located and is especially suited to the doctor's needs. The consideration was $3,700.

G. F. Kellogg formerly of Skidmore, writes from Chicago stating that he has been in charge of the government Seed Reporting Service at that point since about the 20th of January. The February number, government Seed Reporter, which is published at Chicago was gotten out under his supervision. He says he expects to return to Kansas City in the near future and he will be glad to get back as he and Mrs. Kellogg like Kansas City as a place to live. His work at Kansas City will be field work as he will have eight states in the territory under his supervision.

A Big Land Deal.

A transaction in real estate was made by A. B. Crane and Sons and R. H. Rees Monday which involved over $73,000. M. Crane bought the Rees ranch property in Sheridan county, Neb., consisting of 2,236 acres, and transferred as part payment on same the 160 acre farm, known as the old Joe Glenn place west of town. Possession in each case will be given March 1.

Mills Crane, who has been farming the Glenn place, will go to Sheridan county and have charge of the ranch property. It is a fine body of land, all but about 400 acres of it being good farm land. This ranch is located near the land owned by Earl and Charles Colwell, formerly of this place.—Burlington Junction Post.

the automobile. Now, in truth, and in fact, was that diamond tread casing on the right hind wheel or the left hind wheel?

A. I could not tell you to be sure of it.

Q. What is your best memory?

A. Well, the only thing I know, is that Mr. Jim Honaker put it on the right front wheel and I afterwards saw the Horn boys put it on a rear wheel and I am unable to say, now, on which rear wheel.

Q. Then when you told us in the trial of the Adkins case, that on the Monday prior to the Friday on which the fire occurred that you had changed this particular tire from the front wheel to the right rear wheel, of that automobile, you told something that was not true?

A. I surely must have if I told you that.

Q. At whose suggestion did you give that testimony?

A. The lawyers asked me if I could answer to that. I told them I could, yes sir.

Q. Did he ask you if you could swear to that or that you would swear to that?

A. As near as I remember, he said could you swear to that.

Q. Now, tell us the circumstances of your coming to Maryville and who, if anyone, is paying your expenses while here?

A. Mark Adkins called me up the Saturday before I came down here. Wanted me to come down here. I told him I couldn't come down because I didn't have the money. Then he told me that I was to come down and I would not lose anything.

Q. Who is paying your board here now and tell us whether you had received any money from the Adkins or anyone else?

A. I went to Mark Adkins when I came down here and told him I did not have any money and I would have to have a place to stay and board. He took me to the Linville Hotel. He gave me two dollars to pay for one night's lodging.

Q. Now tell us whether or not during this last summer or fall they have discussed with you the proposition of Building a garage in Elmo, and turning it over to you?

A. Well, the only thing that was said up there about building a garage was after I quit Fred Bains, but his relative, Dennis Hudgins, him and two of the Huff boys and there was two or three more that had a meeting there about building a garage there in Elmo, across the street from Fred Bains.

Q. Did they discuss about turning it over to you to run?

A. Nothing only that they wanted me to work for them.

Q. Have they during the past summer or fall permitted you to use their automobiles?

A. I never used Mark Adkins' car, but I have used the Huff boys' car.

Q. Did they bring those machines from their homes near Elmo, Missouri, to your home in Shenandoah?

A. They did once, yes sir.

Q. And while you had them in your possession, with their permission and consent and at their suggestion, did you use the cars?

A. Yes sir, I used the cars.

Q. You now say again, that you cannot tell whether the diamond tread casing was on the left rear wheel or the right rear wheel of the Adkins automobile of the night of April 1 or the next morning?

A. I could not tell you to be sure of it.

AN INVITE TO OKLA.

J. B. ANGELL WOULD INTEREST FRIENDS IN FARMING THERE

HOGS, COTTON, ALFALFA

In Letter to Democrat-Forum Former Resident Points Out Some of Advantags of Washita Valley.

In a letter to the Democrat-Forum, a former well known resident of Nodaway county writes interestingly of agriculture and crops and live stock in the Washita Valley, Okla. Mr. Angell lives at Paul's Valley. His letter follows:

Paul's Valley, Okla., Feb. 11, 1919.

Editor Democrat-Forum: Reading your paper which I get every week, I see so many interesting things about my old friends and neighbors that I feel like, if you will give me space, I would like to tell the people of Nodaway county something about the Washita Valley in Oklahoma. I see so many farms selling in Nodaway county at such a high price that some of them might be interested in locating here.

The Washita Valley is located along the Washita River, is from three to ten miles long and 100 miles in length. The heart and beauty of it is around Paul's Valley, Maysville and Lindsay. The land is levl as can be, no wash nor overflow and consists of a dark sandy loam from ten to fifteen feet deep. You can spade right down to sheet water which is usually found at a depth of fifteen feet.

For crops no better grow anywhere in the world. We raise corn, cotton, wheat, oats and alfalfa; it is one of the greatest alfalfa countries I have ever seen. I have been in the irrigated alfalfa belt in New Mexico and it does not compare with the alfalfa that grows in the Washita Valley. We get from four to five cuttings a year and it usually runs from a ton to a ton and a half per acre with an average of from six to seven tons of hay per acre. We give half of the hay for cutting and putting to the railroad. Hay is worth 37 a ton here now and thousands of tons are being shipped from here to different parts of the country.

This is one of the finest hog countries I have ever seen; we can graze them on the alfalfa summer and winter. My hogs have not had any grain this winter, in fact none of my stock have had grain. They were wintered on wheat and alfalfa pasture. Thousands of horses, hogs, cattle and mules winter right out in the wheat field without any care whatever grazing on the wheat.

We had cotton that made one bale or better to the acre; a bale is 500 pounds and is worth about $150 a bale; seed from a bale is worth from $20 to $30, so you can see that land that will produce a bale of cotton means about $175 an acre. We get one half the cotton delivered at the gin, one third the corn in the crib, and one half of all small grains delivered at the station, the land owners furnishing land and seed.

I have been engaged in the Duroc hog business for the last four years in this country and in 1914 sold nearly $10,000 worth. I own 220 acres of Washita bottom land that is worth $125 an acre, also have a 340 acre tract in Choctaw county that is very valuable land, and all of it is paid for. I have made more money in the last three years than I ever made in my life in Missouri, and those that knew me in Nodaway county know I made a living while there.

I would be glad to have any of my friends call on me or to visit me at Paul's Valley anad would like to have some of the Missouri boys locate in their country; good land can be had here at from $100 to $150 an acre, and put in cotton and alfalfa the rent will pay for it in three or four years. I have my land all rented anad find it very profitable to raise Duroc hogs, alfalfa, corn and cotton. I will meet any of my friends or any Missouri man who wants to look the valley over and show him over it without a cent of expense to him.

I see where lots of your land is selling for $200 and $300 an acre and I know it is not as good land as you can buy for $100 and $125 here, and it will not produce as much to the acre as this land. The climate is fine here, the winters being short and mild. The farmers are plowing now all over the valley and a great many are sowing oats while lots of them have commenced to make garden. The roads are fine and today is a fine spring day with the wheat fields as green as they are in May.

When my subscription is out notify me in time and don't stop the paper, as I can't do without the Democrat-Forum although I still remain an old republican.

M.H.S. WON FROM CHILLICOTHE

Zeigler's Men on Long End of 36-18 Score—Showed Better Team Work Than in Former Games.

In a fairly fast and semi-rough game last night Maryville high school carried off the long end of a 36 to 18 score from the Chillicothe high school. Chillicothe took the lead at the start with a field basket by H. Newman, but soon lost it when French caged a long one and was followed by one from DeArmond. Maryville clinched their lead in the last five minutes of the first half, when they had a scoring spurt that netted them 12 points. For Maryville French played a stellar game with unusually good flood work, three long shots and a short one. Kirby played his usual consistent, heady game. Better team work was displayed than in any previous game. For Chillicothe, Barron was the chief point getter with ten of the eighteen points to his credit. The line up and score follow:

Chillicothe: C. Newman, 2; H. Newman, 2; Barron, 2;

Free throws, Maryville: none out of four tries. Chillicothe: Barron six out of twelve tries. Final score, Maryville, 36; Chillicothe, 18. "Dad" Scarlett of the Normal, referred the game.

ABOUT MEMORIALS

SOCIETY WOULD SAVE NATION FROM UNSIGHTLY MONUMENTS

NATION-WIDE CAMPAIGN

Will Be Launched with View to Preventing Disfiguring Memorials in Villages and Cities.

A campaign of practical education in the matter of war memorials is about to be launched throughout the country by the Municipal Art Society of New York in the hope, says the New York Post, of preventing the disfiguring of American villages and cities by ungainly monuments. The campaign is to be conducted by means of a special bulletin or pamphlet, thousands of which are soon to be distributed to all parts of the country where war memorials are projected.

The campaign will aim to check what is described in the booklet as "a return to the dismal stone age" which followed the Civil war and which left in its wake a mass of "ready made or to order types of cemetery monuments, enlarged a little and furnished with artillery and ammunition."

Albert S. Bard is president of the society, and among the officers are Frank S. Williams, Charles D. Lay, Nelson S. Spencer, Edwin H. Bashfield, Robert W. DeForest, I Wyman Drummond, A. Augustus Henly, Joseph Howland Hunt and Arthur M. Huntington. Funds have been provided for on initial publication of several thousand copies of the booklet, and it is expected that the distribution will begin before the middle of this month.

Efforts have been made to cover every possible place of the memorial problem as it is likely to arise in cities and villages of the country. The aim is to offer advice not only on what to do, but—more important still—what not to do when the project of a memorial comes up. Examples of both kinds of memorials, good and bad, are cited, and on almost every one of the twenty-eight pages of the pamphlet appears some warning against the erection of an architechtural or sculptural monstrocity which the townspeople of the future will live to regret.

One of the interesting points brought out in the pamphlet is the fact that the average town is by no means limited to the conventional soldiers' and sailors' monument of Civil war days. Altogether, thirty-two different kinds of memorials are suggested for consideration. The list includes:

Sculpture Required.

"Of this list," explains the bulletin, "sixteen are primarily architectural constructions, but all require sculpture in varying degrees for their completion. Five are of sculpture, requiring architectural setting, three of pure sculpture, three of landscape architecture, making a place also for architecture and sculpture; the remainder, adaptations of various arts."

The bulletin points out that compared with the present time, the Civil war period "found every town and hamlet singularly unprepared in the fine arts," but that the former excuse for monumental frightfulness no longer holds good, since "we now have at command skilled and trained workers in nearly all forms of arts."

For this reason the society advises monument committees and the like to take plenty of time before making the fatal plunge into memorial art. It should be borne in mind, it says, that "the monument, unlike works of music and painting, must stand an especially severe test," and that "long after the sure criticism of time has relegated many pictures and much music to their proper obscurity" the monument will be found still standing in full view of the public.

"The question of money comes fist," says the bulletin, and proceeds to classify memorials according to cost. "If sufficient can be appropriated or liberal donations secured, community houses and memorial halls may be built and maintained and the more expensive forms of arches, bridges, and towers built; memorial gateways and doors for much smaller sums; liberty flagpoles with ornamental bases, rostra for outdoor speaking, drinking foutains, tablets or electroliers erected for still smaller amounts." It recommends the memorial park as one of the most suitable and adjustable of all projects.

Example of Achievement.

As an example of what may be done with a city street or avenue for memorial purposes, the society cites the development recently undertaken by Columbia University along 110th street between Broadway and Amsterdam avenue. It also calls attention to the fountain in the Queensboro Bridge plaza as "an example of a combination of art offering opportunity for wide extension and hitherto so little understood as to be almost unknown in American work."

Rural arts committees are above all urged to consider the appropriateness of their memorial in relation to the site to be used. The society mentions the case of the soldiers' and sailors' monument on Riverside Drive as an example of adaptation. For two years New York experimented with sites for this monument, and with every new site the form and character of the monument itself underwent a more or less complete change, the final monument being entirely different from the original.

Emphasis is placed upon the responsibility of the art committee chosen to decide upon the proper memorial.

"There is a distinct obligation incurred by the trustees of public or private funds in this matter," says the society, adding that "the expenditure of a substantial sum by a committee without the advice of a competent professional artist is in essence a misappropriation of the fund. No trustee of a hospital would proceed without the service of physicians and surgeons. No trustee under a will would think of undertaking a difficult problem in the administration of his estate without consulting a lawyer. Such Such works of fine are are being made."

IN TROUBLE AT GREEN CASTLE

M. G. Conklin, Who Gives His Address as Maryville, Will Have to Serve Penitentiary Term.

The following article is taken from the New Castle, Ind., Daily Times of February, about M. G. Conklin, who gave his place of birth and present residence at Maryville, Mo.:

Early in November last year a man who gave his name as M. G. Conklin, was in and about New Castle considerably, and on the 6th of that month secured a license to marry Mrs. Laura O. Jackson, daughter of Luther O'Neal of this city.

Shortly after their marriage rumors of crooked work on the part of Conklin came from Muncie, and it was reported that he had extorted money from Mrs. Carrie Hickman Winters, of that city, a niece of George F. Mowrer, of New Castle. These rumors were found to be true, and that he had obtained cash and chattels worth several hundred dollars. Then came the bad check, and the police caught Conklin one night, just as he was packed up for making a get-away.

At the time of his arrest Conklin had some $600 and a diamond ring on his person. He admitted that the ring had been obtained from Mrs. Winters, and that about $400 of the money had been "given" him by her. This and the ring he restored, and also made good the money obtained on his check. The case was tried in court November 21, and on his plea of guilty Conklin was sentenced to one to five years, and then paroled on condition that he should leave the county for at least one year, and that he should in no wise molest Mrs. Winters, either by his presence or letter-writing. This last, it is said, he disobeyed, as he is accused of having written her that he was coming back, and made new demands for money.

It was learned that Conklin was in New Castle last night, and he was arrested in bed at the home of his father-in-law between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning, the arrest being made by Captain Hutson and Patrolmen Beck and Timmons. Judge Gauses ordered Conklin brought into court this morning and the parole was revoked.

In his application for a marriage license Conklin gave his place of birth and present residence as Maryville, Missouri, and his date of birth June 19, 1885.

CHAMPION CHICKEN PICKER.

Carrolton, Mo., Feb. 12.—Herbert Smith is the champion chicken picker of Missouri, according to local commission men. Herbert in a season of nine weeks picked an average of 4,489 chickens per week. His average weekly income was $101. He picked five chickens every three minutes in a week of forty-four hours' work.

THINKS AS HE RUNS

LAWRENCE OGDEN AND HIS SHORT HORN BREEDING METHODS

PUBLICITY AS CAPITAL

Writer in Breeder's Gazette Tells of Some of the Things That Have Contributed to His Rapid Success.

The following article regafding the Ogden & Son Shorthorn herd and the methods employed in breeding by the junior member of the firm is taken from a recent issue of the Breeder's Gazette:

Out where the One Hundred and Two River drains the fertile grasslands of northwest Missouri I saw a Shorthorn cow. Like a fine-cut cameo her characterful-head engraved itself on the memory—it was so sweet, so strong, so something that is hard to tell. Even in the pasturefields of E. Ogden & Son such a cow-countenance must stand for something in particular.

Indeed that motherly individualistic Shorthorn face did stand for something in particular—for the mother of Fair Beauty, which sold to J. H. Crist, Skidmore, Mo., in the Ogden sale last spring at $7,050, with a bull calf by Village Supreme thrown in. And the next day Bellows Bros. paid $7,500 for Fair Beauty and her calf. Charles D. Bellows reckoned she was worth it, being not yet four years old, and with her first calf by Village Supreme topping the bulls in the Ogden auction at $2,500. In fact, since she was by Fair Acres Sultan and out of a granddaughter of both Whitehall Sultan and Ceremonious Archer, it seemed that he could hardly do without her at any price.

The old cow, whose head had made such an indelible impression as Lawrence B. Ogden piloted me in and out among his breeding matrons, was Fair Beauty's mother. Her name was Sittyton Beauty 5th. Lawrence Ogden had bought her at the George J. Sayer dispersion at a price too low to be recorded. That was back in 1913, and the sale was the first at which the younger Ogden was permitted to buy on his own judgment. Which made me believe that he knew what he was talking about when to my question he made this reply: "Father would rather buy cattle privately. I like to buy at sales. There never was a sale held, no matter how high the average, at which there was not one or two bargains." Fair Beauty eventually cost him less than nothing, because her first bull calf brought $2,500. Her mother cost little. He knew that if he yielded to importunity and put her in his auction she would sell at a near-record price. He figured that a big advertising value would attach to such a sale. The time was ripe, so he sold Fair Beauty. Anyhow, he can still gaze on the head of her dam grazing the sweet grasses in the roadside pasture.

You cannot talk to Lawrence Ogden very long without realizing that here is a man who thinks as he runs a cattle breeding business. Fling a mere pebble of an idea, almost any idea, against the flint of his brain and you get a whole scintillation of illuminating sparks.

It is positively stimulating to undertake to find out how a man conducts a Shorthorn business so that in his second public sale he can get $7,050 for a cow of his own breeding, and an average of $1,857 for thirty-five females. Back of Fair Beauty's head was her mother's head; back of the old cow's head was Lawrence Ogden's head—three in one, as it were. And back of the three heads I found formulae for the conduct of at least one Shorthorn breeding herd that in seven short years has proved eminently successful.

Cattle breeding is a business, and after all is said and done must stand or fall on that basis. Ogden & Son had $650 to start their Shorthorn business seven years ago. With that they bought ten plain-bred cows. The ten cows raised eleven calves. The cows in this herd were forced to pay for themselves, and they have always made good. Working into cattle tip-top in pedigree and form necessarily had to be a gradual process. At the Dan R. Hanna dispersion Lawrence Ogden wanted Village King, which he had appraised as Villager's best son. But he did not have money enough to buy him. Village King sold that day for $400. At the last Iowa State Fair he wanted Village Coronet, but could not get John Garden to part with him. It may be a consolation to some of us to know that even the most successful breeders cannot always get what they want! Why did Lawrence Ogden want Village King and Villager's Coronet? I expected to get the "Open Sesame" to all the cattle breeding treasures in that reply. This is what it was:

"Because I like them. I haven't brains enough to tell you why."

"Bloodlines, then. What are your favorite bloodlines?"

Ogden & Son have had in their possession some of the greatest bulls of the breed. It was not good fortune but study which located them. They owned Fair Acres Sultan and Village Supreme. Before that they had Crown Prince and Village Dale. All were sold after one year's service; the Ogdens are running a cattle business, and the sale of such bulls means additional capital with which to expand. It would seem that the real problem of a farmer-breeder who knows how to pick out a real herd bull is to set the price on him high enough after he gets him. There is no reason why a farmer should not borrow every cent possible on his herd, if he can keep money working profitably producing more cattle.

Lawrence Ogden's policy is to make a rapid turnover. He believes that more men hold too long than sell too quickly. His first big deal was when he sold Village Supreme and six cows to Bellows Bros. for $10,750. He had a short time before paid the same firm $5500 for Village Supreme as a calf. Publicity is regarded as real capital by this young farm business man. When he can sell for a price big enough so that the Shorthorn breeding world wants to hear about it he will let them go. And, anyhow, he declares that so far he has always been able to find a better bull.

The herd bull is never permitted to get thin. He is well-fed at all seasons. He gets bran and oats, a little oil meal and silage or cut hay. He has a small pasture next to the road (so passersby can see him, of course), and it connects with the bull box in the barn. The door is open in bad weather and closed in fair. The bull is in for an airing, no matter what kind of weather it is.

GERMAN DYES NOW "SWISS"

Will Now Reach the Market by Way of Basel, Under New Labels.

Basel, Switzerland, is of peculiar interest to us now, because the German dyestuffs that were formerly shipped by way of Hamburg and Antwerp will come out through the great Baden station there. During the past eighteen months the German dye makers, conscious of the growing British and American independence of them, have transferred hundreds of their formulas to Basel manufacturers, who will export them under Swiss labels if it is possible to do so.

Some of the Swiss dye manufacturers however—and there is a considerable colony at Basel—have a union to prevent this camouflage performance.

It all gets down to this: If we are to protect our trade marks and prevent the dumping of an immense amount of German stuff masquerading under Swiss titles, let the Allied world keep its eye on Basel.—Isaac F. Marcossan in the Saturday Evening Post.

CURSED AT VERDICT

Prisoner Was Led From Court Room Loudly Abusing Court and Jury Case Attracted Wide Attention.

Maark M. Adkins, convicted by a jury in circuit court this morning of setting fire to and burning the Gregory garage at Clearmont April 19, 1918, flew into a passion when the verdict was announced, and his face livid with rage, loudly cursed the court aand jury as he was led from the court room by Sheriff John E. Dowden. It was a scene never before witnessed in the court room. Adkins' punishment was fixed at four years in the penitentiary.

The case having been on trial since Monday was given to the jury at 10:15 o'clock last night following the arguments of the attorneys.

It is understood that the first ballot taken last night was ten for conviction and two for acquittal. The second ballot was unanimous for conviction, it is understood. The jury retired last night about midnight. They went in session at seven o'clock this morning to assess the punishment. Several ballots were taken and it stood all the way from three to fifteen years sentence. Finally it was compromised to four years in the penitentiary. The jury came in about 9:15 this morning.

When the jury returned with their verdict but few persons other than those directly interested in the case were in the court room. Adkins sat with his wife, watching keenly the jurors as they filed into their seats, and with an expression of confidence on his face. When the verdict was read he appeared not to realize fully what had happened until the sheriff tapped him on the shoulder and told him he muts go to jail. The prisoner shuffled into his overcoat and leaving the bar began cursing as he followed the sheriff from the room. 'Well, this g—— d—— court is done, g—— d—— 'em, I'll ——" but the rest was lost in the noise of shuffling feet in the hallway.

"What did he say, was he cursing?" Judge Woods asked as if afraid he might have heard aright. When told that Adkins had cursesd the court and was in contempt Judge Woods started as if he would recall him, but changed his mind. "He has already been convicted," he said, "I guess that's enuf."

Seldom has other than a murder case attracted such wide attention, crowds having daily filled the court room to hear the testimony. Over eighty witnesses were summoned, most of them appearing on the stand on one side or the other.

Adkins was charged with burning the Gregory garage at Clearmont, owned by James Hornbuckle and Elmer Pence, the motive being shown to be in revenge for the action of Jas. Hornbuckle in replevin of a car in Adkins possession. With suspicion pointing to Adkins as the perpetrator of the crime officers found the electric wires leading to Clearmont grounded shutting off all lights in the town and later trailed a car said to have been driven by Adkins from near the scene of the fire to his home. The officers found the engine of the car still warm from the drive, Adkins, explaining it by saying he had taken his family to a picture show at Elmo the night before.

Circumstantial evidence in the case was that Clyde Horn, a nephew, was an accomplice and was with Adkins at the time. Horn skipped out and efforts to locate him have proved fruitless.

BACK FROM EASTERN MARKET

H. L. Haines Sees East Pay Homage to Returning Yanks—Talks of Merchandise Prices.

Harvey L. Haines returned at noon today from a three weeks' buying trip at the New York City dry goods markets, during which time he purchased goods for the Haines store.

Mr. Haines says the excitement and stir in the East over the Yankee soldiers this year and last is just the difference between going and coming. He saw the Baltic carrying about 5,000 returned American soldiers enter the harbor at New York. The piers were packed with relatives and friends of the men and there was shouting and singing and tears of joy. Not only the piers, but a distance of three and four blocks back, the streets were massed with people to greet the men. Mr. Haines passed through the big million dollar welcome arch which the city of New York is building at 23rd street and Fifth Avenue. The arch is nearly completed and on returning every soldier must pass under this triumphal span which is a marvel of arhitectural skill.

"Merchandise is higher than a fussing cat's back," was Mr. Haines' comment on the dry goods situation, "but I bought plenty for I figured I could not sell the goods with the goods in New York. While pork, farm products and food stuffs remain as high as they are, dry goods will not and cannot come down. Some lines of domestic cottons are lower, but the colored, especially the finely colored stuff is higher than last season.

"The silks are the most beautiful I have ever seen, but there has been more trouble with the silk market than any other and the prices are simply up-with-the-angels in height. Mills in the East that have been shut down for weeks on account of strikes are just now being opened and the condition of the Japan market has been one of the factors in boosting the prices. The wool situation has caused a greater popularity for silks than we have had for years and the new weaves are what the women call "perfect dreams." They are mandarin, dew-kist, mirrette and pebble silk, not old weaves with new names, but new ones that show what American manufacturers and dye makers can do."

TESTIMONY WAS FALSE

In Statement to Prosecutor McCaffrey This Morning He Declares Evidence Was Not True.

Charles Gibb, a witness in the case of the State against Mark M. Adkins, and arrested late yesterday afternoon on information filed by Prosecuting Attorney McCaffrey on a charge of perjury, was given a preliminary hearing this morning before Justice Johnson and was bound over to the April term of circuit court. Bail was fixed at $750.

Gibb had been called to testify to certain remarks which he had said he heard Adkins utter the day after the burning of the Clearmont garage and also as to the location of the automobile casings on the Adkins automobile. He told in court that the diamond tread non-skid casing was on the right hind wheel of the automobile and that a few days before the fire he had changed this particular tire from the front wheel to the right rear wheel. In a statement to Prosecuting Attorney McCaffrey this morning, he said this part of his testimony was not true.

His statement to Prosecuting Attorney McCaffrey was as follows:

In the office of the Prosecuting Attorney of Nodaway County, Missouri and in the presence of my attorney, Mr. Ellis G. Cook and in the presence of Mr. A. B. Dowden, a deputy sheriff of Nodaway County and also in the presence of Thomas A. Gibbs and I. A. Lloyd, both of Northboro, Iowa, I voluntarily make answers to the following questions put to me by Charles F. McCaffrey, Prosecuting Attorney of Nodaway County, Missouri.

Q. Your name is Charley Gibb?
A. Yes sir.
Q. How old are you Mr. Gibb?
A. I will be 23 the 10th of March.
Q. You are a married man?
A. I am.
Q. Where do you live now?
A. Shenandoah, Iowa.
Q. How long have you known Mark M. Adkins?
A. Well, it hasn't been a year.
Q. You remember coming to Maryville as a witness in the trial of the case of the State of Missouri vs. Mark M. Adkins, wherein he was charged with the burning of the garage at Clearmont, Missouri, on the night or morning rather, of April 19, 1918?
A. Yes sir, I remember coming down here for that.
Q. When, after arriving in Maryville did you see either Mark M. Adkins or any of his brothers or any of the lawyers who were defending him?
A. Well, it was before noon when I saw the Adkins brothers.
Q. Which one of the Adkins brothers did you see?
A. I saw Mark and his brother Ed, both.
Q. When did you see any of the lawyers who were defending him and which ones?
A. Some time in the afternoon of the same day, I saw the one who asked me the questions on the stand and the gray haired one. I can't call their names.
Q. Where did you see them?
A. In their office.
Q. Which office?
A. The one on the corner over yonder, southwest of the court house.
Q. Did they, at any time, discuss with you anything relatives to the Adkins trial?
A. Yes sir.
Q. Now, please tell us whether or not you had written down the location of the automobile casings on the Adkins automobile?
A. I had.
Q. What did you do with that paper?
A. I had it when I came to Maryville and I gave it to one of the lawyers, the one that asked me the questions in the trial.
Q. What did those men, those lawyers, say to you about that?
A. Well, they asked me about those casings that was on the car. They told me to forget about that paper.
Q. On that paper you had written down the location on the automobile of the various casings?
A. Well, I had took the names of them, yes.
Q. You told us in the trial of the cause, that the diamond tread non-skid casing was on the right hind wheel of

ASK $7,000 OF NODAWAY

Drive Will Start Tomorrow—Chairman Wells Names Solicitors Who Will Canvass Maryville.

The county organization in charge of the drive for Armenian and Syrian relief will begin the campaign tomorrow to raise the county's quota of $7,000. One or two townships have already reported their quota raised and reports from others yesterday said there would be no difficulty in raising the sum assigned. The organization in all townships has been completed and a house to house canvass has been planned to begin the first of next week.

Solicitors for Maryville are announced as follows: Mrs. E. F. Dale, Mrs. E. W. Heideman, Mrs. Marie Curnutt, Mrs. R. L. McDougal, George Moore, A. S. Robey, Prof. C. C. Leeson, R. M. Tulloch, Hal T. Hooker, Arch K. Frank, G. H. Westfall, H. E. Wright, Prof. Bert Cooper.

As showing the dire distress of the ravxaged countries, Abram L. Elkus, former United States ambassador to Turkey said in a recent address:

"I thought I knew what hunger and poverty were, but I had no real conception of their meaning until I saw them in the near east," said Mr. Elkus. "It was no unusual thing in the cities to find, in the morning, bodies of women and children who had died of starvation and suffering during the night. Thousands would stand in line all day and all night to get a little soup and a small piece of bread. The 400,000 orphans of Armenia are crowding every available building. These little ones cry aloud to America for help.

"The roads of Asia Minor are white with skeletons of Armenians. A friend of mine counted in one field 400 bodies of those who had been butchered by Turks because they were too exhausted to march. The survivors of the massacres ask America merely for a chance to live and to become self-supporting."

THE PROJECT STARTED

Central Committee Called by Mayor Garrett Formed Temporary Organization Last Night.

That the proposed war memorial in honor and memory of our soldiers and sailors will be a Nodaway county institution for all the people of the county was made evident at the meeting last night of representatives of various civic, religious and educational organizations called by Mayor W. O. Garrett to discuss the project.

The following persons attended the meeting: J. R. Robinson, Board of Education; M. J. Alderman, Nodaway Red Cross chapter; E. C. Curfman, Home Guards; Prof. C. A. Hawkins, Normal School; M. A. Hahn, City Council; C. Edwin Wells, Nodaway County Sunday School Association; Dr. S. A. Coile, Ministerial Alliance; Bernard Dougan, Knights of Columbus; Nathaniel Sisson, Commercial Club; Mrs. M. E. Farrar, Women's Relief corps; Mrs. S.A. Coile, D. A. R.; Sedgwick Post, G. A. R., Capt. Chas. Hyslop; H. D. Snyder, Spanish American War Veterans.

Mayor Garrett informed the meeting that he had thought it advisable to make some kind of a start towards securing a memorial and that further action would be at the pleasure of those present. He said his interest in the matter was in getting a starting point and asked that those present take charge of the meeting. Mayor Garrett was elected to become a member of the general committee and a temporary organization was formed with W. O. Garrett, Chairman; Dr. S. A. Coile, vice-chairman; G. A. Pickens, secretary and Jas. B. Robinson, treasurer.

It was the concensus of opinion that as the proposed memorial was to be erected for the benefit of Nodaway county that farther action be postponed until representatives from every township in the county could meet the central committee to advise and suggest such plans, and ways and means, as would assure the memorial being what the people of the county would like to have.

In line with this idea Chairman Garrett was instructed to communicate with the mayor or chief officers of every town in the county asking that each township send a delegation of three persons to meet with the original committee. The meeting was called to be held Saturday, March 1, at 1:30 o'clock at the court house when a full discussion of the proposed memorial will be had and a permanent county organization formed to handle the matter.

Chairman Garrett was authorized to invite representatives from such other social, fraternal and other societies as might desire to be represented on the committee, among them the W. C. T. U. and the Twentieth Century Club.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one, those present taking part in the discussions and each showing a deep interest in getting the matter under way with the least delay possible.

PRESIDENT WILSON WILL ARRIVE AT BOSTON FEBRUARY 24

HIS PRESTIGE HAS GROWN

Splendid Achievements Before Peace Council Commented on—Will Make Address on Reaching United States.

Brest, Feb. 15.—President Wilson began his return journey to America at 11:15 this morning. At that hour the American transport, George Washington, with the chief executive and his party aboard, steamed out into the harbor. The scenes attending the departure of the President were spectacuarl and huge crowds lined the water front there and continual cheers were given as the liner made its way to sea.

President Wilson sailed for the United States today clothed with even greater prestige than when he arrived in Europe. This is due solely to his magnificent achievement of getting the plan for the league of nations through the committee and before the peace conference. Before time for him to leave the French, who were somewhat touchy at time, notably, over the President's opposition to internation land, sea and air forces, now acclaim his work in the league committee as the strongest peace guarantee the world ever knew.

It is expeted it will take nine days for the return voyage, arriving at Boston on February 24, where the President intends to make a speech immediately after his arrival.

London, Feb. 15.—Adverse opinion is given on the league of nations constitution by the press today, but generally the newspapers are enthusiastic over it.

NEWS FROM

NODAWAY COUNTY TOWNS

Mrs. Will Wallace is now manager of the Mutual Telephone Co., at Hopkins, coming the first of the month from Parnell, where she had been manager of the Telephone Company there. The patrons are already bragging on the good service they are now receiving.

Through the agency of Frank Melick, Lawrence Wiley has bought the John Koomer 160 acre farm 2 miles southwest of Hopkins, the consideration being $26,000. Mr. King, who now resides on the farm, will remain on it for another year.

Rev. D. W. Griffith of Hopkins has received a letter from his son, Walter, who is at Arenburg, Germany, which shows that he and his brother, Ben, who is at Coblenz, have found each other. His letter written on Jan. 9, is as follows:

Dear Folks: I was over in Coblenz about 10 kilos from here to see Ben and we had a couple of hours' talk. He promised faithfully to come out here Sunday and by the time you receive this letter who should have seen each other a number of times.

He is healthy and working like a bever in a laboratory. I guess it seems strange, running across each other during the war.

S. B. Neff sold his farm east of Elmo to T. R. Livengood, and gives possession March 1. The land adjoins Mr. Livengood's farm and will make a valuable addition to his place.

We did not learn what Mr. Neff will do but suppose he may move to his other farm about a mile to the northeast.

Len Andrew, of Hopkins, who recently gave a big closing out sale after leasing his farm for a term of years to Oe McMillen, soon found there is no country quite as good as Missouri, as last week he returned from Denver, where he had been staying since leaving here, and bought the Geo. Cassel eighty that adjoins his farm, and will move onto same, paying $175 an acre for it. Len and his wife both have a lot of friends and all are mighty glad they have decided to again live among us.

The Barnard Mercantile Co. traded their 157 acres near Cawood to S. E. Richards last week, taking in on the deal the 20 acre farm, known as the Eliza Miller farm and a 40 acre farm formerly owned by W. B. Torrance.

The Barnard State Bank has plans to enlarge their banking house in the near future, having secured the Thos McMillen building for that purpose. They will build a large fireproof vault and make other additions.

Monday evening there was held at Harmony church a meeting to close up the financial affairs of the new High School building. A balance of $700 was raised which made a total of cash raised of $2,350 and makes it possible to pay off all the indebtedness of the school. Besides the expenditure of that amount of money there has been much work donated by the patrons and friends of the school. Some one gives it out that Rev. Green worked 100 days and others contributed in proportion, so that it is conservatively estimated that the school stands them about $4,000.

Pat Beatty of Parnell is just completing a nice bungalow on his farm west of town. Pat says he got tired of living in an old house and thought he would be a little more modern. The most of the carpenter work was done by his uncle, A. J. Beatty.

J. D. Rice of Barnard closed a deal Friday with J. E. Goforth whereby he traded his 160 acre farm lying west of town to J. E. Goforth at $18,000, taking in 120 acres of land in North Dakota at $8,000. Possession will be given March 1, and Rice will move with his family to Dakota.

Rev. R. W. Moore, recently called pastor of the Christian church of Barnard arrived there last week to make his future home. He is dividing his time between the Christian churches at Barnard and Bolckow. Mr. Moore seems to be a mighty pleasant man and will find a ready welcome there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Klaas of Conception went to Camp Dodge, Iowa, Saturday to visit their son, Henry, who is in the hospital at that place. He was wounded while in action in France, and has but recently returned to the U. S.

Ross Wallace received notice the latter part of last week that he had been appointed carrier on rural route No. 2 at Clearmont, to take the place of Charles Thorp, who died a short time ago. He commenced his work Monday morning. This is not new work to Ross, as he has acted as substitute carrier and was well posted on the work.

Orlo Lincoln of Pickering has accepted a position in the store of Caudle, Lincoln & Co., of Burlington Junction and began work there this week. Henry L. Rutherford, who has been working at this store the past year, will be back with Corken & Yaple the first of the month.

Mrs. Maria Bowman sold her farm of 180 acres, located west of Burlington Junction yesterday, the purchaser being her grandson, Charles Suttle of near Pickering. The consideration was $110 an acre. Charles gets possession the first of March but C. E. Jones who has been farming the place, will continue there another year.

Adrian Brown, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, living four miles southeast of Burlington Junction, arrived home Tuesday morning with his honorable discharge from military service. Adrian was among the first Burlington Junction boys to be taken, leaving here in September, 1917, for Camp Funston. He trained there the following winter and was sent overseas in the spring, and was soon on the scene of action. Adrian was compelled to go to the hospital several times on account of a catarrhal affection in the head, the exposure in active service aggravating the condition. He is the third Burlington Junction soldier to return home who has seen overseas duty.

Dr. C. E. Cossins of Burlington Junction has bought the Dragoo residence property, which he has rented for several years. This is a very desirable property, well located and is especially suited to the doctor's needs. The consideration was $2,700.

G. F. Kellogg formerly of Skidmore, writes from Chicago stating that he has been in charge of the government Seed Reporting Service at that point since about the 20th of January. The February number, government Seed Reporter, which is published at Chicago was gotten out under his supervision. He says he expects to return to Kansas City in the near future and he will be glad to get back as he and Mrs. Kellogg like Kansas City as a place to live. His work at Kansas City will be field work as he will have eight states in the territory under his supervision.

A Big Land Deal.

A transaction in real estate was made by A. B. Crane and Sons and R. H. Rees Monday which involved over $75,000. M. Crane bought the Rees ranch property in Sheridan county, Neb., consisting of 2,235 acres, and transferred as part payment on same the 160 acre farm, known as the old Joe Glenn place west of town. Possession in each case will be given March 1.

Mills Crane, who has been farming the Glenn place, will go to Sheridan county and have charge of the ranch property. It is a fine body of land, all but about 400 acres of it being good farm land. This ranch is located near the land owned by Earl and Charles Colwell, formerly of this place.—Burlington Junction Post.

the automobile. Now, in truth, and in fact, was that diamond tread casing on the right hind wheel or the left hind wheel?

A. I could not tell you to be sure of it.

Q. What is your best memory?

A. Well, the only thing I know, is that Mr. Jim Honaker put it on the right front wheel and I afterwards saw the Horn boys put it on a rear wheel and I am unable to say, now, on which rear wheel.

Q. Then when you told us in the trial of the Adkins case, that on the Monday prior to the Friday on which the fire occurred that you had changed this particular tire from the front wheel to the right rear wheel, of that automobile, you told something that was not true?

A. I surely must have if I told you that.

Q. At whose suggestion did you give that testimony?

A. The lawyers asked me if I could answer to that. I told them I could, yes sir.

Q. Did he ask you if you could swear to that or that you would swear to that?

A. As near as I remember, he said could you swear to that.

Q. Now, tell us the circumstances of your coming to Maryville and who, if anyone, is paying your expenses while here?

A. Mark Adkins called me up the Saturday before I came down here. Wanted me to come down here. I told him I couldn't come down because I didn't have the money. Then he told me that I was to come down and I would not lose anything.

Q. Who is paying your board here now and tell us whether you had received any money from the Adkins or anyone else?

A. I went to Mark Adkins when I came down here and told him I did not have any money and I would have to have a place to stay and board. He took me to the Linville Hotel. He gave me two dollars to pay for one night's lodging.

Q. Now tell us whether or not during this last summer or fall they have discussed with you the proposition of Building a garage in Elmo, and turning it over to you?

A. Well, the only thing that was said up there about building a garage was after I quit Fred Bains, but his relative, Dennis Hudgins, him and two of the Huff boys and there was two or three more that had a meeting there about building a garage there in Elmo, across the street from Fred Bains.

Q. Did they discuss about turning it over to you to run?

A. Nothing only that they wanted me to work for them.

Q. Have they during the past summer or fall permitted you to use their automobiles?

A. I never used Mark Adkins' car, but I have used the Huff boys' car.

Q. Did they bring those machines from their homes near Elmo, Missouri, to your home in Shenandoah?

A. They did once, yes sir.

Q. And while you had them in your possession, with their permission and consent and at their suggestion, did you use the cars?

A. Yes sir, I used the cars.

Q. You now say again, that you cannot tell whether the diamond tread casing was on the left rear wheel or the right rear wheel of the Adkins automobile of the night of April 1 or the next morning?

A. I could not tell you to be sure of it.

KNOWING ONE'S BUSINESS.

Every man to his business.

Suppose the Farmers Trust Co. should offer to invoice your hardware business, or do the buying for your grocery, dry goods or jewelry store, you would doubt its ability to do so, and rightly so, because the trust company has not had experience in these lines.

Now, why ask a friend to become trustee or executor of your estate?

It is out of his line, and his mistakes may prove costly to the estate.

The Farmers Trust Co. will be glad to talk over these things with you.

AN INVITE TO OKLA.

J. B. ANGELL WOULD INTEREST FRIENDS IN FARMING THERE

HOGS, COTTON, ALFALFA

In Letter to Democrat-Forum Former Resident Points Out Some of Advantags of Washita Valley.

In a letter to the Democrat-Forum, a former well known resident of Nodaway county writes interestingly of agriculture and crops and live stock in the Washita Valley, Okla. Mr. Angell lives at Paul's Valley. His letter follows:

Paul's Valley, Okla., Feb. 11, 1919.

Editor Democrat-Forum: Reading your paper which I get every week, I see so many interesting things about my old friends and neighbors that I feel like, if you will give me space, I would like to tell the people of Nodaway county something about the Washita Valley in Oklahoma. I see so many farms selling in Nodaway county at such a high price that some of them might be interested in locating here.

The Washita Valley is located along the Washita River, is from three to ten miles long and 100 miles in length. The heart and beauty of it is around Paul's Valley, Maysville and Lindsay. The land is levl as can be, no wash nor overflow and consists of a dark sandy loam from ten to fifteen feet deep. You can spade right down to sheet water which is usually found at a depth of fifteen feet.

For crops no better grow anywhere in the world. We raise corn, cotton, wheat, oats and alfalfa; it is one of the greatest alfalfa countries I have ever seen. I have been in the irrigated alfalfa belt in New Mexico and it does not compare with the alfalfa that grows in the Washita Valley. We get from four to five cuttings a year and it usually runs from a ton to a ton and a half per acre with an average of from six to seven tons of hay per acre. We give half of the hay for cutting and putting to the railroad. Hay is worth 37 a ton here now and thousands of tons are being shipped from here to different parts of the country.

This is one of the finest hog countries I have ever seen; we can graze them on the alfalfa summer and winter. My hogs have not had any grain this winter, in fact none of my stock have had grain. They were wintered on wheat and alfalfa pasture. Thousands of horses, hogs, cattle and mules winter right out in the wheat field without any care whatever grazing on the wheat.

We had cotton that made one bale or better to the acre; a bale is 500 pounds and is worth about $150 a bale; seed from a bale is worth from $20 to $30, so you can see that land that will produce a bale of cotton means about $175 an acre. We get one half the cotton delivered at the gin, one third the corn in the crib, and one half of all small grains delivered at the station, the land owners furnishing land and seed.

I have been engaged in the Duroc hog business for the last four years in this country and in 1914 sold nearly $10,000 worth. I own 220 acres of Washita bottom land that is worth $125 an acre, also have a 340 acre tract in Choctaw county that is very valuable land, and all of it is paid for. I have made more money in the last three years than I ever made in my life in Missouri, and those that knew me in Nodaway county know I made a living while there.

I would be glad to have any of my friends call on me or to visit me at Paul's Valley anad would like to have some of the Missouri boys locate in their country; good land can be had here at from $100 to $150 an acre, and put in cotton and alfalfa the rent will pay for it in three or four years. I have my land all rented anad find it very profitable to raise Duroc hogs, alfalfa, corn and cotton. I will meet any of my friends or any Missouri man who wants to look the valley over and show him over it without a cent of expense to him.

I see where lots of your land is selling for $200 and $300 an acre and I know it is not as good land as you can buy for $100 and $125 here, and it will not produce as much to the acre as this land. The climate is fine here, the winters being short and mild. The farmers are plowing now all over the valley and a great many are sowing oats while lots of them have commenced to make garden. The roads are fine and today is a fine spring day with the wheat fields as green as they are in May.

When my subscription is out notify me in time and don't stop the paper, as I can't do without the Democrat-Forum although I still remain an old republican.

M.H.S. WON FROM CHILLICOTHE

Zeigler's Men on Long End of 36-18 Score—Showed Better Team Work Than in Former Games.

In a fairly fast and semi-rough game last night Maryville high school carried off the long end of a 36 to 18 score from the Chillicothe high school. Chillicothe took the lead at the start with a field basket by H. Newman, but soon lost it when French caged a long one and was followed by one from DeArmond. Maryville clinched their lead in the last five minutes of the first half, when they had a scoring spurt that netted them 12 points. For Maryville French played a stellar game with unusually good flood work, three long shots and a short one. Kirby played his usual consistent, heady game. Better team work was displayed than in any previous game. For Chillicothe, Barron was the chief point getter with ten of the eighteen points to his credit. The line up and score follow:

Chillicothe: C. Newman, 2; H. Newman, 2; Barron, 2;

Free throws, Maryville: none out of four tries. Chillicothe: Barron six out of twelve tries. Final score, Maryville, 36; Chillicothe, 18. "Dad" Scarlett of the Normal, referred the game.

ABOUT MEMORIALS

SOCIETY WOULD SAVE NATION FROM UNSIGHTLY MONUMENTS

NATION-WIDE CAMPAIGN

Will Be Launched with View to Preventing Disfiguring Memorials in Villages and Cities.

A campaign of practical education in the matter of war memorials is about to be launched throughout the country by the Municipal Art Society of New York in the hope, says the New York Post, of preventing the disfiguring of American villages and cities by ungainly monuments. The campaign is to be conducted by means of a special bulletin or pamphlet, thousands of which are soon to be distributed to all parts of the country where war memorials are projected.

The campaign will aim to check what is described in the booklet as "a return to the dismal stone age" which followed the Civil war and which left in its wake a mass of "ready made or to order types of cemetery monuments, enlarged a little and furnished with artillery and ammunition."

Albert S. Bard is president of the society, and among the officers are Frank S. Williams, Charles D. Lay, Nelson S. Spencer, Edwin H. Bashfield, Robert W. DeForest, I Wyman Drummond, A. Augustus Henly, Joseph Howland Hunt and Arthur M. Huntington. Funds have been provided for on initial publication of several thousand copies of the booklet, and it is expected that the distribution will begin before the middle of this month.

Efforts have been made to cover every possible place of the memorial problem as it is likely to arise in cities and villages of the country. The aim is to offer advice not only on what to do, but—more important still—what not to do when the project of a memorial comes up. Examples of both kinds of memorials, good and bad, are cited, and on almost every one of the twenty-eight pages of the pamphlet appears some warning against the erection of an architechtural or sculptural monstrocity which the townspeople of the future will live to regret.

One of the interesting points brought out in the pamphlet is the fact that the average town is by no means limited to the conventional soldiers' and sailors' monument of Civil war days. Altogether, thirty-two different kinds of memorials are suggested for consideration. The list includes:

Sculpture Required.

"Of this list," explains the bulletin, "sixteen are primarily architectural constructions, but all require sculpture in varying degrees for their completion. Five are of sculpture, requiring architectural setting, three of pure sculpture, three of landscape architecture, making a place also for architecture and sculpture; the remainder, adaptations of various arts."

The bulletin points out that compared with the present time, the Civil war period "found every town and hamlet singularly unprepared in the fine arts," but that the former excuse for monumental frightfulness no longer holds good, since "we now have at command skilled and trained workers in nearly all forms of arts."

For this reason the society advises monument committees and the like to take plenty of time before making the fatal plunge into memorial art. It should be borne in mind, it says, that "the monument, unlike works of music and painting, must stand an especially severe test," and that "long after the sure criticism of time has relegated many pictures and much music to their proper obscurity" the monument will be found still standing in full view of the public.

"The question of money comes fist," says the bulletin, and proceeds to classify memorials according to cost. "If sufficient can be appropriated or liberal donations secured, community houses and memorial halls may be built and maintained and the more expensive forms of arches, bridges, and towers built; memorial gateways and doors for much smaller sums; liberty flagpoles with ornamental bases, rostra for outdoor speaking, drinking foutains, tablets or electroliers erected for still smaller amounts." It recommends the memorial park as one of the most suitable and adjustable of all projects.

Example of Achievement.

As an example of what may be done with a city street or avenue for memorial purposes, the society cites the development recently undertaken by Columbia University along 110th street between Broadway and Amsterdam avenue. It also calls attention to the fountain in the Queensboro Bridge plaza as "an example of a combination of art offering opportunity for wide extension and hitherto so little understood as to be almost unknown in American work."

Rural arts committees are above all urged to consider the appropriateness of their memorial in relation to the site to be used. The society mentions the case of the soldiers' and sailors' monument on Riverside Drive as an example of adaptation. For two years New York experimented with sites for this monument, and with every new site the form and character of the monument itself underwent a more or less complete change, the final monument being entirely different from the original.

Emphasis is placed upon the responsibility of the art committee chosen to decide upon the proper memorial.

"There is a distinct obligation incurred by the trustees of public or private funds in this matter," says the society, adding that "the expenditure of a substantial sum by a committee without the advice of a competent professional artist is in essence a misappropriation of the fund. No trustee of a hospital would proceed without the service of physicians and surgeons. No trustee under a will would think of undertaking a difficult problem in the administration of his estate without consulting a lawyer. Such Such works of fine are are being made."

IN TROUBLE AT GREEN CASTLE

M. G. Conklin, Who Gives His Address as Maryville, Will Have to Serve Penitentiary Term.

The following article is taken from the New Castle, Ind., Daily Times of February, about M. G. Conklin, who gave his place of birth and present residence at Maryville, Mo.:

Early in November last year a man who gave his name as M. G. Conklin, was in and about New Castle considerably, and on the 6th of that month secured a license to marry Mrs. Laura O. Jackson, daughter of Luther O'Neal of this city.

Shortly after their marriage rumors of crooked work on the part of Conklin came from Muncie, and it was reported that he had extorted money from Mrs. Carrie Hickman Winters, of that city, a niece of George F. Mowrer, of New Castle. These rumors were found to be true, and that he had obtained cash and chattels worth several hundred dollars. Then came the bad check, and the police caught Conklin one night, just as he was packed up for making a get-away.

At the time of his arrest Conklin had some $600 and a diamond ring on his person. He admitted that the ring had been obtained from Mrs. Winters, and that about $400 of the money had been "given" him by her. This and the ring he restored, and also made good the money obtained on his check. The case was tried in court November 21, and on his plea of guilty Conklin was sentenced to one to five years, and then paroled on condition that he should leave the county for at least one year, and that he should in no wise molest Mrs. Winters, either by his presence or letter-writing. This last, it is said, he disobeyed, as he is accused of having written her that he was coming back, and made new demands for money.

It was learned that Conklin was in New Castle last night, and he was arrested in bed at the home of his father-in-law between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning, the arrest being made by Captain Hutson and Patrolmen Beck and Timmons. Judge Gauses ordered Conklin brought into court this morning and the parole was revoked.

In his application for a marriage license Conklin gave his place of birth and present residence as Maryville, Missouri, and his date of birth June 19, 1885.

CHAMPION CHICKEN PICKER.

His average weekly income was $101. He picked five chickens every three minutes in a week of forty-four hours' work.

THINKS AS HE RUNS

LAWRENCE OGDEN AND HIS SHORT HORN BREEDING METHODS

PUBLICITY AS CAPITAL

Writer in Breeder's Gazette Tells of Some of the Things That Have Contributed to His Rapid Success.

The following article regarding the Ogden & Son Shorthorn herd and the methods employed in breeding by the junior member of the firm is taken from a recent issue of the Breeder's Gazette:

Out where the One Hundred and Two River drains the fertile grasslands of northwest Missouri I saw a Shorthorn cow. Like a fine-cut cameo her characterful-head engraved itself on the memory—it was so sweet, so strong, so something that is hard to tell. Even in the pasturefields of E. Ogden & Son such a cow-countenance must stand for something in particular.

Indeed that motherly individualistic Shorthorn face did stand for something in particular—for the mother of Fair Beauty, which sold to J. H. Crist, Skidmore, Mo., in the Ogden sale last spring at $7,050, with a bull calf by Village Supreme thrown in. And the next day Bellows Bros. paid $7,500 for Fair Beauty and her calf. Charles D. Bellows reckoned she was worth it, being not yet four years old, and with her first calf by Village Supreme topping the bulls in the Ogden auction at $2,500. In fact, since she was by Fair Acres Sultan and out of a granddaughter of both Whitehall Sultan and Ceremonious Archer, it seemed that he could hardly do without her at any price.

The old cow, whose head had made such an indelible impression as Lawrence B. Ogden piloted me in and out among his breeding matrons, was Fair Beauty's mother. Her name was Sittyton Beauty 5th. Lawrence Ogden had bought her at the George J. Sayer dispersion at a price too low to be recorded. That was back in 1913, and the sale was the first at which the younger Ogden was permitted to buy on his own judgment. Which made me believe that he knew what he was talking about when to my question he made this reply: "Father would rather buy cattle privately. I like to buy at sales. There never was a sale held, no matter how high the average, at which there was not one or two bargains." Fair Beauty eventually cost him less than nothing, because her first bull calf brought $2,500. Her mother cost little. He knew that if he yielded to importunity and put her in his auction she would sell at a near-record price. He figured that a big advertising value would attach to such a sale. The time was ripe, so he sold Fair Beauty. Anyhow, he can still gaze on the head of her dam grazing the sweet grasses in the roadside pasture.

You cannot talk to Lawrence Ogden very long without realizing that here is a man who thinks as he runs a cattle breeding business. Fling a mere pebble of an idea, almost any idea, against the flint of his brain and you get a whole scintillation of illuminating sparks.

It is positively stimulating to undertake to find out how a man conducts a Shorthorn business so that in his second public sale he can get $7,050 for a cow of his own breeding, and an average of $1,857 for thirty-five females. Back of Fair Beauty's head was her mother's head; back of the old cow's head was Lawrence Ogden's head—three in one, as it were. And back of the three heads I found formulae for the conduct of at least one Shorthorn breeding herd that in seven short years has proved eminently successful.

Cattle breeding is a business, and after all is said and done must stand or fall on that basis. Ogden & Son had $650 to start their Shorthorn business seven years ago. With that they bought ten plain-bred cows. The ten cows raised eleven calves. The cows in this herd were forced to pay for themselves, and they have always made good. Working into cattle tip-top in pedigree and form necessarily had to be a gradual process. At the Dan R. Hanna dispersion Lawrence Ogden wanted Village King, which he had appraised as Villager's best son. But he did not have money enough to buy him. Village King sold that day for $400. At the last Iowa State Fair he wanted Village Coronet, but could not get John Garden to part with him. It may be a consolation to some of us to know that even the most succeessful breeders cannot always get what they want! Why did Lawrence Ogden want Village King and Villager's Coronet? I expected to get the "Open Sesame" to all the cattle breeding treasures in that reply. This is what it was:

"Because I like them. I haven't brains enough to tell you why."

"Bloodlines, then. What are your favorite bloodlines?"

Ogden & Son have had in their possession some of the greatest bulls of the breed. It was not good fortune but study which located them. They owned Fair Acres Sultan and Village Supreme. Before that they had Crown Prince and Village Dale. All were sold after one year's service; the Ogdens are running a cattle business, and the sale of such bulls means additional capital with which to expand. It would seem that the real problem of a farmer-breeder who knows how to pick out a real herd bull is to set the price on him high enough after he gets him. There is no reason why a farmer should not borrow every cent possible on his herd, if he can keep money working profitably producing more cattle.

Lawrence Ogden's policy is to make a rapid turnover. He believes that more men hold too long than sell too quickly. His first big deal was when he sold Village Supreme and six cows to Bellows Bros. for $10,750. He had a short time before paid the same firm $5500 for Village Supreme as a calf. Publicity is regarded as real capital by this young farm business man. When he can sell for a price big enough so that the Shorthorn breeding world wants to hear about it he will let them go. And, anyhow, he declares that so far he has always been able to find a better bull.

The herd bull is never permitted to get thin. He is well-fed at all seasons. He gets bran and oats, a little oil meal and silage or cut hay. He has a small pasture next to the road (so passersby can see him, of course), and it connects with the bull box in the barn. The door is open in bad weather and closed in fair. The bull is in for an airing, no matter what kind of weather it is.

GERMAN DYES NOW "SWISS"

Will Now Reach the Market by Way of Basel, Under New Labels.

Basel, Switzerland, is of peculiar interest to us now, because the German dyestuffs that were formerly shipped by way of Hamburg and Antwerp will come out through the great Baden station there. During the past eighteen months the German dye makers, conscious of the growing British and American independence of them, have transferred hundreds of their formulas to Basel manufacturers, who will export them under Swiss labels if it is possible to do so.

Some of the Swiss dye manufacturers however—and there is a considerable colony at Basel—have a union to prevent this camouflage performance.

It all gets down to this: If we are to protect our trade marks and prevent the dumping of an immense amount of German stuff masquerading under Swiss titles, let the Allied world keep its eye on Basel.—Isaac F. Marcossan in the Saturday Evening Post.

Some day, somewhere, a baby boy will be born who will grow up and become a barber who can cut your hair just as you want it. Maybe, some day.

The ordinary housefly can lift a match between two of its feet and carry it. A human being to perform a similar feat would have to life a beam twenty-five feet long and sixteen inches thick.
